Applying Behavioural Sciences to EU Policy-making

This sets out the importance of behaviour in policy making, the role of the Behavioural Insights Team in the Cabinet Office and how behavioural science insights can be applied to health using the MINDSPACE framework.

Applying behavioural insight to health

Policy-making can greatly benefit from a better understanding of people's behaviour. Often the assumption has been that people are "rational". However, this assumption has been shown to be unrealistic, and perhaps explains the limited effectiveness of some policies in the past. Well-designed behavioural studies can offer useful insights to policy-makers by generating the evidence ...
