Computational Methods for Astrophysical Applications - KU

Four lectures lead the reader from basic numerical methods for solving hyperbolic partial differential equations to the application of complex simulation codes to selected astrophysical problems. The text highlights the powerful capabilities, the use, and the pitfalls of computational astrophysics

COMPUTATIONAL ASTROPHYSICS Computational astrophysics is the use of numerical methods to solve research problems in astrophysics on a computer. Numerical methods are used whenever the mathematical model describing an astrophysical system is too

Computational astrophysics is most often studied through an applied mathematics or astrophysics programme at PhD level. Well-established areas of astrophysics employing computational methods include magnetohydrodynamics , astrophysical radiative transfer, stellar and galactic dynamics, and astrophysical fluid dynamics .
